President Garfield and General Grant have at last met at Long Branch, at the reception given by the President. They cordially shook hands, had a little whispering conversation, smiled gently at each other, and parted. The country may now be considered safe.

A telegram from Galena brings the intelligence that Hon. J. Allen Barber, of Lancaster, in this State, is lying at the point of death, from a rupture received last Thursday. They say there is no hope for his recovery, and that he can not survive very long. The report in the Chicago papers that he was a memberof Congress from 1868 to 1872, contains errors in dates. He was first, elected in 1870, and took his seat in 1871 and served two terms-till March 4th, 1875. He settled in Lancaster, Grant county, in 1837, and was a member of the first constitutional convention in 1816. He served in the Assembly in 1852, 1853, and 1863, and the last time was speaker; and 1856 and '57 he was a Senator. He was a successful lawyer, and by constant industry, the most rigid economy, and carefully investing every cent which came into his hands, he accumulated a handsome competency.

Mr. John C. Dodge's contribution to the Atlantic Monthly for July, on "Trial by Jury in Civil Suits," is chiefly valuable for its treatment of the question from the historical standpoint. In this he has shown a patience and fidelity in tracing the origin and progress of the jury system that entitles him to the thanks of the legal profession and of all students of political economy. We think there will be a general and wide dissent from his conclusion that the system ought to be abandoned. His reasons reatoo few and are not far-reaching enougheven if true, which we doubt. The accident of an occasional verdict adverse to what may be the law and the right of a case affords no sound reason for abandoning that which has had the sanction of the best minds of the country. We think the system may be much improved, but that its basic idea is correct, we make no doubt. We ask a reading of the article by our legal friends, and shall be glad to have an expression of opinion

Major Pond, the complainant in the malodorous divorce suit now being tried in Boston, worked as a farm hand for Jacob Carter, of this county, when a boy, and we about as ignorant and unpromising a cub as could readily be found. It may perhaps be said that he hasn't falsified the prospects of his youth, for he has achieved more notoriety than honor thus far in his career—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

"Major" Pond is also well known in Janesville. He once kept a saloon in this city called "The Root Hog or Die," and at one time set type in the Gazette office. He afterwards went into the warwent in poor but came out comfortably well off. Since then, the people of Wisconsin were not a little astonished when he gained somewhat of a national reputation by becoming the agent of Henry Ward Beecher, but they will not be very much astonished to learn that he wants to abandon his wife and turn her out into the world to get her own living. The appearance of the comet at that time This last act of Pond is in keeping with was splendid beyond anything which has his general character. The court did been seen since 1858, when Donati's comright in relasing a divorce, and it did a good thing when it decreed that he should pay her $60 a month as alimony.

The appearance of a comet is proving a regular picnic for all lovers of estronomy. Vennor Again Predicts of the Weath er-July Will be Stormy Ortawa, June 25 .- Vennor, in a letter to the Citizen this morang, says: "I believe that the present summer is one in a triad of similar summers, probably the middle one. It is ! kely to resemble in its chief features that of 1890, and to differ in some of its minor details. The approaching month of July will give a great deal of rain, as in 1880, over a large portion of the United States and Canada, while in Great Britain the weather will in all probability be likewise stormy and wet. The storms of wind, thun-A Contradicted Story Relating der, and lightning are likely to be severe and frequent. The heaviest rains for New York and vicinity would locate after the 20th, and probably on the 21st and 22d dates. Between the 10th and 15th days an exceedingly hot term is likely to be experienced in both United States and Canada. With a few days from the close of the month, probably about the 27th or 23th, a cool wave will occur, carrying frosts into Canada and cold weather generally, with storms of wind and rain throughout the United States. felt in era and Southwestern States duringJune, there also will the severest storms of July be experienced. ### THE LINCOLN ESTATE.

Springfield, June 26-A dispatch rom Bloomington to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch states that the following was a canard without foundation:

"Senator David Davis has left for Springfield, in answer to a telegram requesting I's presence at the bedside of Mrs. Lincoln, widow of President Lincoln. Senator Davis was execu tor of the estate of Mr. Lincoln, and it is thought the visit is of a business character, Mrs. Lincoln being desirous of making an arrangement about the disposition of the property."

The ramor probably grew out of a visit of Mrs. Lincoln's washer-woman to the servants in the household of Judge Davis. Your correspondent is informed that the Hon. Jacob Bunn and Judge Edwards, of this city, are the conservators of the Lincoln estate. Mrs. Lincoln is enjoying reasonably good health.

CHICAGO LETTER.

From our regular correspondent. Спісасо, June 25-During a short trip lately, through Northern Illinois, I was very much interested in the crop prospects. From appearances, small grain promise an abundant yield. Rye is excellent and very heavy. Oats ditto, and very forward. Wheat and barley look very much better than for many years. Corn is somewhat backward, owing to the cold and wet spring, but farmers say it will come ont al right if July and August are warm. It looks very healthy and of a dark green color, which is a sure indication of vigorous growth. Potatoes are very fine and promising everywhere. Grass is heavy, and vegetables of all kinds abundant. Practical Hints for the Toilet.

I think it as much a duty to make the most of what beauty we possess, warding off the ravages of time, and keeping up the little details of the toilet, as are the every-day duties of a thrifty housewife.

A simple cosmetic which has the advantage of being perfectly harmless is simple tincture of benzoin. One can get five cents' worth of gum benzoin, boil a rich tincture, but the better way is to get it already prepared at a drug store always asking for simple tincture, as the compound is unfit for the purpose. Ten cents' worth will last a long time. Have a small bottle or glass of any kind that is convenient to be kept on your toilet table, put a few spoonfuls of water in it, and put enough of the tincture in to give it a rich, milky appearance, apply two or three times a day to the face with a small sponge or cloth, allowing it to dry on the face. It is said to remove tan, and certainly gives a decided brilliancy to the complexion. A celebrated beauty, who has succeeded in keeping off wrinkles and preserving her beauty past the prime of life, claims that the smoothness of her face is owing to the use of pure olive oil. She says before retiring she would apply the oil to her face, rubbing it in thoroughly, pressing the skin back toward the temples, and she also advises its use after the bath, rubbing it freely on the joints, and with as much friction as possible. I think its use might in a great measure prevent that stiffness which always seems a characteristic of old age. An old cloth should be laid on the pillow to prevent its being soiled by contact with the face. And in the morning the face should be thoroughly washed and rubbed briskly with a coarse towel. I do not advise the use of soap oftener than twice a week, and always avoid going out immediately after washing, as the race is then more susceptible to the erfects of the weather. Or, if you must go, apply the glycerine and a little oatmeal or rice powder-two things that should be on every toilet table. A bandoline which is cheap, simple and more effective than the so-called article offered for sale, is quince seed macerated, soaked in a little water until it attains the thickness of sirup. It will not in the least injure the hair. Now a word or two to the tired, worn sisters a week, using the oil afterward, and you will find the little aches of joints and limbs greatly relieved; if possible. try the salt water bath daily. Then in the morning rise ten minutes earlier, if afterward, physically and mentally. Do your hair becomingly, and don't think just "because John is the only one you will see at breakfast that it is not necwill see at breakfast that it is not necessary to put on a collar." Yours used to be the most attractive face in the world to him; why should it not be so still? Put on the collar or baste a little white lace or ruttle in the neck, add a knot of pretty ribbon, or if in summer, a leaf and flower; 'twill not take more than two or three minutes, and you don't know how much it will add to your comfort and general appearance. Have a clean white apron ready, and after your breakfast is prepared (if you are your own housemaid) lay aside your kitchen apron, don the white one, and if you meet your husband with one of the bright smiles you used to give him, he will not be the man I take him for if he does not respond with a kiss and a grateful, admiring glance at the bright-faced, neatly-dressed little wife, and the idea will never present itself to contrast his wife with any other, except contrast his wife with any other, except it be in her favor.—" Floy," in Demorest's Magazine.

And Such a Change.

Within the last ten years a new and significant kind of literature has sprung up among us. It consists for the most up among us. It consists for the most part of thin octavo volumes, in purple or red bindings, with a gorgeous coat of arms blazoned on the back, and on the front page the magic words, "Printed for private circulation only." Each of these volumes purports to be the authentic history of some American family, Smith or Potter, as the case may be, from the present time back to a great founder somewhere in the mists of antiquity. The peculiarity of these books is that very little information is given concerning the present generation of Smiths or Potters, although it could so readily be obtained. The writer of the book is usually that member of the family who, having made a fortune by a ily who, having made a fortune by a lucky speculation in soaps or a patent pill, is acquiring a taste for good birth along with the other belongings of the class into which he has made his way. He has given up pie for breakfast and a noon dinner, and leisurely eats his eleven courses at seven. He no longer takes his boys to the negro minstrels and laughs on a front bench, but sits in a box at the Academy, where the music is severely classical, critical and calm. His wife has banished knitted cotton tidies from her parlor, and talks now of the "feeling in her embroidered towels," and the "harmony of eternal mo-tion" in the wave-pattern of a napkin. Why should they also not drop the Smith and Potter blood of the present, smelling as it does of soaps or ipecac, and treat themselves to a great ancestor back in the middle ages—a whacking, bloody, spurred Crusader of the high heroic pattern?—N. ### The Man With a Racket.

He was probably from Deadwood, or Custer City, or the Gunnison Valley, or from some of the other places where they wear one shirt for three months and have no other wish except to die with their boots on, no matter how many square feet of cow-hide there is in 'em. There was only one other man in the saloon when he entered and inquired for five fingers of straight pizen. This solitary man sat with a leg on either side of a chair, his chin resting on the back of it. His eyes were halfclosed, his tongue hanging out a bit, and his mind was at rest. The new arrival swallowed his liquid, wiped his chin with his coat-tail, and suddenly came down in front of the sleeping man

" I'm from the head waters of Grizzly, River! I'm the only living reptile as ever crossed Rattlesnake Perrary or swum the length of Alligator Lake!"

"Eh!" was all the other said, as he slowly opened one eye.
"I've fit the hull Pawnee tribe of Injuns to oncet! I've gone out at mid-night to tackle estamounts, and got up airly in the morning to pull cinnamon b'ars out of thar dens! I've looked buffler bulls out of countenance, and I've made a grizzly shake all over by one

"Y-e-s," drawled the man on the chair as he drew in his tongue and opened the other eye. "Don't tackle me!" yelled Deadwood, as he leaped high in the air and clicked his teeth together. "The man who tackles me is pulp in just two seconds! Don't sit thar and look at me that way, for I'm an avalanche on wheels—a landslide with a gait of nine-ty miles a minit—a tornado which plays ball with the peaks of the Rockies! That's the kind of a tomahawk I amthat's the racket I've worked ever since I was ten days old?"

The man on the chair yawned heavi-ly, stretched his arms, and lifted himself up with the motions of an elephant. "Whoop! waugh!" yelled the other.
"I've lost my notched stick, but I'll make oath that I've wiped out forty-seven white men and over a hundred

Inconveniences of Color-Blindness.

The inconveniences which color-blind

people must frequently be exposed to are manifest. Numerous stories are told of the most ludicrous mistakes made, especially by red-blind persons; of a tailor, for instance, who mended a black coat with a piece of red cloth; of a hunter who bought red cloth to have a hunter who bought red cloth to have made what he supposed would be a green hunting-jacket. The story of the tailor shows how this malady, or, rather, constitutional defect, may do injury to men in their professional capacity. But the consequences that may possibly arise from it are of a far more serious nature when the safety of a large number of human beings is dependent on the color-vision of a single individual. This is the case with railroad opera-tives, who must be able without fail to tell one signal from another; and, as of late years the conviction has gained ground that color-blindness is far more common than it was formerly supposed common than it was formerly supposed to be, the railroad companies are warned more emphatically from year to year by scientific men to see to the eyes of their employees. Some of the European Governments are beginning to turn their attention to this important matter (all the more important because railroad signals are usually rad and railroad-signals are usually red and green, and red-blindness is the most common form of the failing), and the Swedish Government has lately directed the physicians attached to its state roads to examine all the operatives on these roads, with a view to the detection of the presence of color-blindness. The first fruit of this order is a report by Prof. Holmgren, who recently examined the employees of the Upsala-Gefle road, showing that, out of two hundred and sixty-six individuals, eighteen were afflicted with the malady to a degree sufficiently high to incapac-itate them entirely for service on the road. The prevalence of the disease varies in different countries, the highest percentage being found in England, where, according to a statement made by Prof. von Bezold, in his Theory of Color," republished in this country in an English translation, one out of every eighteen persons is said to be afflicted with it. Among men, as before remarked, the disease is more common than among women. - Popular Science Monthly.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so re markable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876, I was taken with a vio-LENT BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS, followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as to satisfy them, when, to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish annot grow fine fruit without both, and a good deal of them. A fruit tree shows neglect very quickly. ### The Hessian Fly.

There are two broods of these flies appearing in early spring, and the sec-ond a few weeks before the wheat is ready to be harvested. The flies of the second brood deposit their eggs upon the young winter wheat; hence, they can maintain themselves only in districts where this cereal is grown, while in localities where spring wheat alone is raised, they will be almost if not entirely unknown.

As a preventive against the attacks of this insect, many authors recommend not to sow the grain until all the flies have been killed by the frost; but this remedy will never be very generally adopted, as late-sown wheat is very apt to be winter-killed. Others recommend sowing the wheat that the flies will be enabled to pass through their transfor-mations before winter sets in; but this plan will be objected to on the same ground as the first, as wheat too far ad-vanced is about as liable to be winterkilled as the late sown wheat is. Farmers usually know the date for sowing winter-wheat so that it will be most likely to withstand the winter, and sowing the regular crop. When the wheat in this strip is well up the flies in the vicinity will deposit their eggs upon it, and, after waiting a week or so for this to be accomplished, plow under this strip with the rest of the field. By this operation the progeny of all the flies in the immediate vicinity will be destroyed, and unless other flies make their appearance later in the season from adjoining fields the regular crop will enjoy perfect immunity from their attacks. It cannot be too strongly urged that all the farmers who grow winter wheat in districts infested with winter-wheat in districts infested with this fly should adopt this method; for if only one here and another there adopt it, the flies from the fields of those who have neglected to do so will stock the fields of their more careful neighbors with eggs in spite of all the latter can do to prevent it, and thus the industrious and thoughtful farmer must suffer for the negligence of others.—D. W. Coquillett, in Germantown Tele-

Soiling Stock.

A writer in a recent number of the Milch Zeitung, on the danger to German which the same crop is never put twice in succession on the same land. The soiling system makes it easier to carry out the second part of this programme, and the great variety of crops that can be raised on a long rotation provides a greater variety of fodder for the stock; so that these two features of the best in embroideries. There is more profit in small fruits than in embroideries. There is more money modern agricultural practice work admirably together. The soiling system provides a more uniform ration in mirably together. The soiling system provides a more uniform ration in respect to quantity and avoids much loss of manure. It may be pretty safely affirmed that the droppings of cattle in the pasture are more than half wasted by drying in the sun, or by too strong dosing with manure in isolated spots, here and there. Where land is cheap and abundant, and cannot be profitably cultivated and carried up to a high degree of fertility, pasturage over a large portion of the farm may be allowed; but when high farming pays pasture-land is a poor investment and pasture-land is a poor investment and may eat up a large part of the profits from the cultivated fields.—Michigan Farmer.

Pastures.

A great mistake is too often made in the management of pastures. Though we call our pasture grasses perennial, yet they as really reproduce their roots every season as they do their tops. The early spring growth is largely given to the reproduction of roots for the summer work. The material for this root-growth is elaborated and prepared in leaf or blade, and if this be largely di-minished while this material is being prepared, the root-growth is arrested, and with this the ability of the pasture to make a heavy summer crop, or to reproduce itself when pastured close, is proportionally impaired. Short pastures in May will insure short pastures the whole summer. If a good root-growth be secured in May, grass will hardly be short in August, though it be bet and dry. A portable fence is a hot and dry. A portable fence is a great convenience in the management of pastures. By this stock can be confined to lots of desirable size and not suffered to range the whole pasture. An advantage of long pastures that is often overlooked is the fact that there is a constant ratio between the top and root of grass, and therefore the more the top is grown the greater the amount of vegetable matter contributed to the soil, as a fall crop of roots decay every year, to enrich the land. Pastures are generally left to take care of themselves, but if they are on land somewhat worn, a topdressing of stable manure, or a mixture of one hundred pounds of bone and plaster, each, per acre, sown broadcast

Proper Care of the Orchard.

Speaking of poor orchard managetors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when, to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel betment, Mr. Barry says that he has seen not pay. Trees may be kept in a vigor-ous and healthy condition by proper tillage of the soil, abundance of fer-tilizers, and judicious pruning. These involve labor and expense, but you had observed similar results in the case of other fruit trees. In some soils, especially in those of a light and sandy produced in one year, the first brood nature, a moderate top-dressing every year is necessary; in others, every second year will be sufficient. There can be no rule laid down. The trees and fruit will tell what is wanted.—Rural New Yorker.

Out-Door Exercise for Women.

Some years since the wife of wealthy Tennessoe banker, after trying a variety of remedies for dyspepsia and other ailments, consulted a physician noted for plain common sense and small doses of physic. He told her if she would split the wood for the family it would cure her. Woodhouses are unknown in Tennessee, or were at that time, and of course the wood splitting must be done in the open air. The lady procured an axe suited to her hand, and applied herself to the task, beginning with a few sticks each day, and increasing the number as she grew stronger. Gradually her ailments all disappeared and her health became ex-uberant. When we knew her twentylikely to withstand the winter, and five years ago, with a house full of serv-they are not willing to sow it either earlier or later than this date without at command, she still did all the woodvery good reasons for so doing. One of the very best remedies for preventing the attacks of this fly is that of sowing a narrow strip of land around the field intended for winter wheat about three or four weeks before the time for mere muscular labor had. mere muscular labor had.

It is said by an English physician of eminence that every servant in an English family of the middle and lower classes of society costs the life of a child. By so much as the mother is raised above the necessity of labor is she rendered incapable of producing a numerous and healthy offspring. In the ranks of nobility, where a large establishment with its full complement of servants leaves the lady of the house ample leisure for horseback-riding and the athletic out-door exercises of which English women are proverbially fond, this rule does not apply. In every country the women who exercise actively in the open air either from choice or necessity are the most healthful, the most happy of their sex.

There is nothing more tiresome, nothing more wearing, than the routine of indoor work that many women feel themselves compelled to follow year after year. They walk from the pantry to the work-table, to the stove, to the sink; they go down cellar and upstairs, and pass from the dining-room to the sink; they go down cellar and upstairs, and pass from the dining-room to the kitchen and back again, and thus their lognes and Extracts for the days go by. The spring comes and goes, but they do not take time to breathe in its beauty and its fragrance; Hair, Nail and Tooth Brushes, stood up like wires, got clear of the chair and began to fumble under his coat-tails.

"W-what yer gwine to do, ole pard?"

"Gwine fur to spile yer racket! I don't 'low nobody to jump up and down and maintaining the fertility of the land and holler and whoon and wangh on the danger to derinate and breathe in its beauty and its fragrance, summer comes and goes, but leaves no rich memories in their hearts of its splendor; the leaves take on all the gorgeous hues of the rainbow and fall, but they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintaining the fertility of the land they have no time for even a brief and maintain and holler and whoop and waugh on at a higher point; that twice as much though often stern beauty of winter is me when I'm straddle of a cheer and fodder can be produced on a given sur- winter is quite wasted on them. Such face when the forage plant is allowed women need of all things something to grow as a cultivated crop and reach that will force them out of doors, that a certain degree of maturity than when. will compel them to open their lungs, as in pasture, it is continually cropped off and trodden down. He believes, and inspiration dwelling under the roofless sky. Having eyes they see not, the subject, that the most successful system of agriculture, in the long run, is that in which a large quantity of stock is kept and fed well, and a careful rotation of crops is followed, in the sunshine would make them absolute

their sisters whose lives pass wholly within doors. There is a growing reaction against the excessive indoor life our people have addicted themselves to for the last generation. Athletic sports are hap-pily everywhere on the increase, both with men and women, with students of both sexes, and with children. Already summer resorts are filling up and city people are going where they can be all the long days in the open air, on the tainted country air and eat simple, nu-tritious, unadulterated food, to make acquaintance with birds and flowers and rest on the clean green sod so unlike hot and dusty city pavements.

The old fable of Antaus is full of meaning, full of suggestion. If we but touch Mother Earth we rise strength-ened for the struggles of life, and long communion with her enables even us to perform herculean labors. If those who have but little time to give to mere exercise out of doors will contrive to perform indoor tasks as much as possible out of the house and in the open air the gain will be very great. A piazza or balcony on the four sides of the house is greatly to be prized. If one wants sun she can have it, or shade she can have it, and with it abundance of unvitiated air. Here sewing can be done, or reading, or writing, or napping of a summer's day in a hammock or an easy chair. Here the baby can play without harm from insects or the dampness of the ground, and take its airing even if the skies are moist. A piazza constantly used is a great security against ill-ventilated rooms; the contrasts it suggests tend continually to bring all of out-doors possible into the house.—N. Y. Tribune.

ÁND SPERMATORRHŒA.

A valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, an entirely New and positively effective Romedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its specific influence on the Seminal Vesicles, Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland, and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, and does not interfere with the ordinary pursuits of life; it is quickly dissolved and soon absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dinness of Sight, Norvous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, etc., etc., and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little if any permanent good. There is no Nonsense about this Preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction. During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble, that is well known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. The Remedy is put up in neat boxes, of three sizes. No. 1, tenough to last a month, $3; No. 2, (sufficient to effect a permanent cure, unless in severe cases,) $5; No. 3, itssting over three months, will stop emissions and restore vigor in the worst cases,) $7. Country Road-Making.

It needs no argument to prove to thinking people that good roads pay. But it is also evident that there is a lack of good roads, especially in the country. This is due largely to ignorance and want of public interest. As this is the time of the year when overseers are receiving their appointment and beginning to spend the people's money, it is a good time to consider the subject.

A good system helps very much in securing good roads. The old way of having short road districts, an overseer for each, and depending upon property-owners to work out their road-tax at their convenience, is not suited to thickly-settled regions. Having seen the working of a system somewhat similar to the one I am about to suggest, I commend it to the attention of those who desire good roads. Where the work is not done by contract, let each township be a district by itself. At the annual town meeting a Board of High-way Commissioners should be elected who should employ as road-master, upon a fair salary, a good practical man, who has some knowledge of surveying and engineering. Furnish him with one or two yokes of oxen, one or two pairs of horses with wagons, carts, ploughs, scrapers, and small tools, and money to hire steadily through the summer eight or ten men, and perhaps four through the winter. His business should be to study road-making, learn where the best materials are to be had, and, in short, to give the people, as soon as possible, good roads all over the township. This system has two advantages over the old way: 1. It would put the road-making in the hands of a few competent men who would make it their business; 2. The hired men, not having other interests to look after, would work the roads at the proper season of the year, and, being engaged constantly, would become expert, and accomplish much more than green hands. A good road should be hard, smooth, well-graded, free from stone and sandy stretches, sufficiently wide for two carriages to be driven abreast without interfering, and having on either side a ditch to carry off the water, and a sidewalk for pedestrians. As a rule, main roads leading to centers of trade should be straight, and macadamized in the center. In suburban districts, where the land is rolling, and where rural beauty and not utility alone is the aim, serpentine roads are preferable, so made as to avoid the hills and marshes, and to develop good building sites. A good road to be pleasant and attractive should also have on either side rows of shade-trees. The untraveled parts should be cleared of stones, briers and weeds, leveled and sown with grassseed. When water from a spring can be led to the side of a road, a water-crosses should have wide, substantia bridges, and a good wagon passage through the water on one side. ing willows around the water's edge, and ivy vines clambering over the stones of the bridge, give an added charm. Guide-boards or large stones at the intersections of roads, painted with directions as to the way, often save much anxiety and many unnecessa-

The best time of the year to build new roads is in the spring or early sum-mer. The ground is then loose and easily handled, and when the work is completed it has time to settle before winter. When laying out a new road, or beginning to repair an old one, it is good economy to employ an engineer or other competent person to fix the course, the proper grade, the direction for the water to run, the width of wagon-bed and sidewalk. When once rigidly adhered to. The road-bed should have a convex form, twenty inches to two feet in the center above The intention is to raise a permanent the bottom of the ditches. Low lands cart the soil down on to the low land This helps the grade, and the mixture Pot Luck Mackerel, Broiled Mackerel, Spiced of soils, especially if one is sandy or Pigs Feet, Oneida Community Baked Beans, gravelly, is beneficial. Level off the Lemarchard Boneless Sardines, Sardines in Todirt with hoe or shovel before harrow- mato Sauce, Sardines in Mustard. Boneless Her not throw the stones on the sidewalk, Shrimps, Maryland Crabs, Russian Caviar, but cart to a miry place which it is intended to macadamize. Underdrain Chowder, Fresh Mackerel, Salmon and Lobsters, low, wet, springy places, laying the tile under the wagon track, with a free outlet for the water at the side of the road. Black muck, wash from the road which is largely mixed with the droppings of animals and vegetable mold are not good materials, and should be covered up or carted away to give place to clayey subsoil, sand, gravel and fine broken stone. These make a firmer bed, and do not so easily work up into a blinding dust. Putting stone in ruts and holes, or thin macadamizing, unless the stone is broken very fine, is unwise. The frost, rain and wheels soon displace them, and then the road becomes rough and unpleasant the year around, painful to horses, wearing to wagons, and torturing to all travelers. Waterbars should be made on the hill-sides. A road-plane or scraper is a very serviceable implement, and should be used more freely, especially in the spring and summer, to smooth the roads and fill up ruts and holes where water is likely to stand. The winter work for the men consists in carting and breaking stone for macadamizing, and the carting of gravel for dressing the roads. Had we such roads as we might and ought to have, there would be less complaint about living in the country.— Dennis C. Crane, in Examiner and

-M. Boudet has constructed an apparatus for relieving pain by mechanical vibration. It consists of a tuningfork kept in constant vibration by an electro-magnet, and the tremors thus produced are communicated directly to the skin by means of a rod. The efficacy of vibrations is no doubt due to the irritating effects of the snocks the terminal twigs of the nerves, and it is expected that many kinds of pain will be dispelled by the use of this appliance. When the nerves are not too deep-seated, Boudet's apparatus is said to be capable of charming away neu-ralgia in a few minutes. When it is applied to the skull it produces a sense of giddiness and a desire to sleep.

THE MUNICIPAL COURT.

The City Conneil Accepts the Propo sition of the County Board. The city council met Saturday evening. and at the eleventh hour decided as t the location of the municipal court was to begin All the were present except Ald. Hemming. Ald. Nonis moved that the propomade by the county board be accepted, locating the municipal court in the agricultural rooms of the court house, the county to heat, light and furnish the same. The motion

The bond of Judge Patten were presented, and approved. It was for $500, and was signed by L. F. Patten, Wm. A Lawrence, James Merzies, and H. Rich ardson.

The council then adjourned. This left the muncipal court in rather a slim condition for making a brilliant opening to-day. Hanson & She'll not be on the track or the turf any Co's factory, subject to the order of the city, and to be paid for by the city. It devolves now upon the county to furliterary social to which all are invited, nish the rooms, and whether they will the place being Cannon's hall, and the buy the desks, etc, of the city is for time of opening 8 o'clock. A number the county board to decide. At present there is no furniture in the rooms except an old table and a chair or so.

Judge Patten did not qualify to-day, being determined to wait until the room could be put in order for business. This afternoon some odd bits of furniture are being picked up here and there, and the room is being put in shape so that business can be transacted there until the board can see about getting some permanent farniture. The judge expects to quality so as to beg'n business to-morrow morning. These peculiar circumstances have made the criminal business of the day rather mixed. John Powers, who was arrested for stealing a watch from : Monroe man's pocket on circus day, was before Justice Nolan for examination, and it resulted in his being held for trial in the sum of $30). The question arose as to whether he should be held to the Municipal Court or Circuit Court. It was decided that as Judge Patten had not qualified, the prisoner must be held to the Circuit Court, and as he had no bondsmen he was taken to jail wait there until November, when if the Municipal Cour had been in session, the trial would have been soon. It was a pitiable sight indeed to see the wife of this man Powers, with a babe at her breast, and a little child tottling by her side, weep and sob, as her husband was led off to jail with an excellent chance of going to the

There was one case of drunkenness. to-day, and the man was tried and sent to jail by Justice Nolan, instead of by the Municipal court.

One man was in from Porter who want ed to have a neighbor arrested for assault. Justice Prichard would not issue the warrant, as he did not think he had the right to do so, and on the other hand the municipal court was not running, and hence the man has to wait for justice.

It is pretty well mixed, but to-morrow matters may be more straightened up.

OBITUARY.

MRS. PAULINE JENKINS. The announcement of the death of Mrs Pauline Jenkins, wife of J. C. Jenkins, which occurred about 9 o'clock this morning, will come as a sad surprise to her many friends here. For about three months past she has been suffering from a malignant disease of the stomach and liver, which has caused her great pain, and has kept her confined to her room most of the time, but of late she showed marked improvement, and had so far recovered, apparently, as to be able to be up and around. and Saturday last was out taking the air, thus giving her friends great reason to hope for a still longer lease of her life, but in the night, or early yesterday morning, she was tak en with violent pains, internal hemorrhage resulted, and she grew worse, until death ended all.

Mrs. Jenkins was born in Stephen town, N. Y., June 24, 1806, and had therefore just passed her 75th birthday. Her maiden name was Simmons, and in September, 1830, she married him who is left to mourn. Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins came to this city in May, 1815, and have lived here ever since, forming many friends and acquaintances, among firm. whom great sadness will be felt at the death of the wife, and great sympathy at the sorrow of the husband. Besides the husband she leaves two sons, Robert, whose home is in Boscobel, and Charles E., who lives here. Mrs. Jenkins was woman of rather retiring habits, yet one whose many qualities of true womanhood endeared her to all with whom her life came in contact. She was a member of Trinity Episcopal church, and the funeral services will be conducted by Rey. T W. MacLean, at the family residence Wednesday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

A Baptist Minister's Experience. I am a Baptist minister, and before even thought of being a clergy man, I graduated in medicine, but left a lucrative practice for my present profession, was carried, there being not a dissenting 49 years ago. I was for many years sufferer from quinsy: "THOMAS ECLECTRIC OIL cured me." I was also troubled with hoarseness, and Thomas Eclectric Oil always relieved me. My wife and child had diphtheria, and "Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured them," and if taken in time it will cure seven times out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinate cold or cough, and if any one will take a small teaspoon and half fill it with Oil, and then place the end of the spoon into the head by snuffing as hard as they can, until the Oil falls over into the throat, and practice that twice a week, I don't care how offensive their head may be, it will clean it out and cure their catarrh. For deafness and earache edge. It is the only medicine dubbed patent medicine that I have ever felt like recommending, and I am very anxious to see it in every place, for I tell you that I would not be without it in my house for any consideration. I am now suffering with a pain like rheumatism in my right limb, and nothing relieves me like Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

A MIDNIGHT RAID.

Last night the rooms occupied by Har ry Anderson and temny in his block of Main street, were entered by a thief who secured some plunder. There were at the time some friends, who had been visiting the family for some days, Charles Sweet and Mr. Spears, both of Finley, Ohio. About midnight Mr. Sweet awoke from his sleep, and saw a man sitting on the floor, going through the pockets of a pair of trowsers, but he thought it was a dream, so drowsy was he, and fell asleep. He soon awakened again and noticed the

By shaking himself up he became aware it was no dream, and on jumping up found that the place had been burglarized. He aroused the family, and on looking about the premises it was discovered that the pocket-books of both visitors were gone, and that a silver watch belonging to D. H. Williams, had been taken from the stand on which Mr. Williams laid it before retiring to sleep. It also appeared that the thief had taken a pipe, which he had boldly filled and lighted, so as to have a smoke as he walked away with the other plunder.

Mr. Sweet remembered that in his helf lream the man whom he saw seemed to him to be a young fellow who has been employed in Harry Anderson's barber shop for about two months past, his name being Peter Tipperarity. This im pression was verified this morning by the failure of Peter to appear as usual at the shop, he having evidently skipped out. The money secured was less than $10, and the watch stolen was worth that amount, so that $20 will probably cover the uninsured loss.

AN INCIPIENT BLAZE.

Last evening there was a narrow es cape from a big blaze, the flames being Sales of seed leaf tobacco reported by discovered in a little barn on Mr. Shafer's premises, and snug to Bump & Gray's elevator. When the fire was discovered it was burning quite briskly, there being plenty of combustible material for it to feed upon, but Mr. Shafer and others pulled off some of the boards, threw pails of water upon the blaze, and succeeded in putting it out before particular damage

From the circumstances of the case it is thought that some one from the outside must have thrust a lighted match through a crack in the barn, with a view of firing it, and had it got under headway the adjacent warehouse would surely have caught.
